

APPLY FOR ECLS 2021

Would you like to organise and host your very own symposium? Apply for funding to bring your idea to life!

Get a head start in research and network across disciplines by organising a one-day symposium. The Physiological Society, the Biochemical Society and the British Pharmacological Society will provide financial and logistical support for an in-person, hybrid, or entirely virtual event.

WHAT'S INVOLVED?

Applicants will be responsible for the planning and organisation of a one-day symposium. Specifically, applicants must be prepared to work as a team to find a venue or decide on an online platform, design the programme, market the conference, assess abstracts and raise sponsorship, (if necessary on top of funding from the three societies). All proposals must be relevant to the interests of all three sponsoring societies.

WHO SHOULD APPLY?

A group of PhD students or recent postdocs. We will also accept submissions from early career groups working in industry.

HOW DO I APPLY?

Please visit The Physiological Society's website for more information:
